Kansas Governor Proclaims October 2018 Domestic Violence Awareness Month

Topeka, KS – On October 1, 2018, Kansas Governor Jeff Coyler proclaimed October 2018 Domestic Violence Awareness Month in Kansas.

KCSDV Executive Director Joyce Grover, seven members of KCSDV's staff, and YWCA NE KS Center for Safety and Empowerment Program Director Michelle McCormick were at the Governor's Office as Governor Coyler signed the proclamation, making the 2018 awareness month officially recognized by the state.

Domestic Violence Awareness Month (DVAM) increases awareness about domestic violence. KCSDV's mission is to prevent and eliminate sexual and domestic violence.

“Domestic violence is a widespread, preventable, public health problem, directly affecting at least 35 percent of all Kansans – and indirectly and directly affecting us all,” said KCSDV Executive Director Joyce Grover.

Present and included in the picture is: Stefanie Spade, KCSDV's Rural Collaboration Coordinator; Kathy Ray, KCSDV's Director of Advocacy, Education, and Rural Projects; Michelle McCormick, YWCA NE KS Center for Safety and Empowerment's Program Director; Sara Rust-Martin, KCSDV's Director of Legal and Policy; Laura Jones, KCSDV's Statewide SANE SART Project Coordinator; Kristina Scott, KCSDV's Child Welfare Project Coordinator; Joyce Grover, KCSDV's Executive Director; and Lucca Wang, KCSDV's Communications Coordinator.

PRESS RELEASE

Domestic violence can be lethal: At least 12.8% of all homicides in Kansas in 2016 were domestic violence-related. Domestic violence is underreported.

The National Coaliton Against Domestic Violence (NCADV) is KCSDV's national leader for the awareness month. NCADV published a DVAM #SurvivorSpeaks awareness campaign toolkit on the NCADV website for anyone to access and use.

Organizations and people across the U.S. and in cities and communities in Kansas are honoring DVAM. Visit KCSDV's map of KCSDV coalition member programs on the KCSDV website at <http://kcsdv.org/find-help/in-kansas/dv-sa-services.html> to access each KCSDV coalition member program's website for support and to see what events may be happening near you.
